WHY CCLI?

Back in the mid-1980s a church was actually sued for copyright infringement because they copied songs without permission. It made front-page news and became the catalyst for the "blanket permission" concept offered by CCLI.

With the Church Copyright Licence, churches can legally copy songs in bulletins, song sheets, computer projection masters and custom arrangements . . . all for the purpose of assisting in congregational singing.

It's a concept that has been embraced by churches across the Asia-Pacific region

Because it's so convenient. Cost-effective. Fair. and Right.
